THE SATURDAY GAZETTE, BLOOMFIELD AND MONTCLAIR.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY JOURNAL OF LITERATURE,

EDUCATION,
POLITICS,
GENERAL NEWS,
AND LOCAL INTERESTS.

It is generally acknowledged to be the equal of the best newspapers published and superior to most country papers. It is a matter of pride to these towns which it so ably and well represents.

To sustain these assertions, it would be easy to give a large selection from opinions of its readers and patrons which constantly come to hand. But the paper will speak for itself.

Subscription price, $2 a year or $1 for six months.

ONLY.

Only a day—and yet how long a story;

Only a dream—and yet it returns it will;

Only a curl from out that aburnt glory

That browed her head, now slumbering so still.

Only a little life—and yet it led to heaven,

The home that longer lives may fall to win;

She had no wanderings to be forgiven

Before the golden door could let her in.

Only a sunbeam for a moment glancing;

Only a star gleam in a darkening sky.

And gone so soon, yet in our memories printing

Those soft rare images that will not die.

Only a little bird, to sing and perish,

Only a little heart to beat with joy and love,

Only a look of hair to dearly cherish;

But just our angel more to welcome us above.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for June—opening the Forty-ninth Volume of that most entertaining of periodicals—contains unusual selections. A series of illustrated articles on Mexico, by Bishop Gilbert Haven, is commenced. The style of the opening paper is crisp and piquant, and the illustrations—of which there are seventeen—are very attractive. A second illustrated paper on Dr. Schweinfurth's African Explorations, by Helen S. Conant, takes the reader into the land of the Niam-niams, and treats of the wonderful race of people beyond. Bayard Taylor, in a recent letter from Egypt, shows that a remarkable degree of interest the Khedive has taken in this curious people, of whom he has two specimens in his palace near Boulak.

In view of the interest now taken in the restoration of fish to their native haunts, the "Nymphidia," by Michael Drayton, first published three years after Shakespeare's death. The poem is illustrated with ten exquisite engravings.

There is also in this number another illustrated poem, full of feeling, finely conceived, and melodiously expressed, entitled "The Prisoner," by Zadel Barnes Buddington.

Drayton's Nymphidia inevitably suggests The Cupid Psyche, of whose author, Joseph Rodman Drake, a very interesting sketch is given by James Grant Wilson, accompanied by a faithful portrait. Mr. Wilson's paper contains some very rare material, including some poems of Drake never before published.

In "The Jews and their Persecutors," we have from the pen of Eugene Lawrence one of those rare historical reviews into which he knows so well how to compress volumes of information, while he gives to the movement and dramatic situations the thrilling interest of romance.

George B. McClellan's second paper on Army Organization is very suggestive and instructive. He gives special attention to the General Staff Corps of the Prussian service, and its connections with the War Academy at Berlin; and he explains the various systems through which European armies are recruited.

Another exceedingly entertaining installment is given of the "Recollections of an Old Stager," including characteristic notices and anecdotes of John Quincy Adams, Sam Houston, George M. Drougou, Tom Marshall, and other Congressional celebrities.

Beside the two serial Novels, by Professor De Mille and Miss Mulock, there are two excellent short stories by Kate Hillard and Fannie Hodgson Burnett. Rose Terry Cooke contributes a poem entitled "Macarius's Lesson."

George William Curtis, "in the Easy Chair," renders a graceful tribute to the memory of Senator Sumner, and chats in his characteristic manner about the Wagnerian problem. The Scientific Record is very comprehensive and interesting, and the other Editorial departments are full of entertainment and information.

The Editor's Drawer, with other facetious, contains two humorous poems by R. H. Stoddard, and one, apropos of cremation, by John Paul.

THE GALAXY FOR JUNE.

CONTENTS: 1. Linley Rochford. 2. To a Musical Clock. 3. The Forty Immortals. 4. Looking Back. 5. Life on the Plains. 6. General G. A. Custer. 6. Scandinavia. By Clemens Petersen. 7. Richard Wagner and his Theory of Music. By Edward G. Loring. 8. Hugh Granger's Woe. In Three Parts. Part 1. By Emily Read. 9. Sonnets. 10. Voice-Workers. 11. The Singing Voice. By Olive Logan. 12. In the Desert. 13. "Six Minutes' Arrest." By Richard B. Kimball. 14. Fishes.—Clever, Edible, and Otherwise. 15. Birds by My Window. A June Song. 16. Matilda's Bird. By G. P. Lathrop. 17. The Volume of the Currency. 12. Drift Wood. 18. Scientific Miscellany. 19. Current Literature. 20. Nephelie. By the Editor.

The Galaxy for June has contributions from Justin McCarthy, Albert Rhodes, Olive Logan, General Custer, Richard Grant White, Richard B. Kimball, and other clever writers.

Perhaps the most attractive article in the number is Mr. Petersen's sketch of Scandinavia, which has the double merit of absolute novelty and graceful diction.

In an article upon "The Forty Immortals," Mr. Rhodes weaves into a historical sketch of the French Academy a great many curious facts and anecdotes of distinguished men who have been members of disappointed candidates within the two centuries of its existence.

Mr. Olive Logan Sikes contributes a very interesting article upon voice-training and professional singing. Her statement of the large prices paid to singers, of even mediocre talent, will surprise the uninitiated.

It is generally supposed that the American Indian never laughs nor weeps, nor exhibits any emotion except a yearning for fire-water. In his present narrative General Custer describes scenes which fairly put the question to rest. Some Indian chiefs are subjected to the most intense anxiety and mental trial, followed by excessive joy and later by an appeal to their affection as husbands and fathers.

Mr. Richard Grant White offers, in place of his usual supply of Linguistics, a delightful article upon the Music of the Future and Richard Wagner.

There are three short stories in the number, and five poems, after which come the choicest of the miscellaneous sketches of the Editorial Department, in which Science, Literature, and gossip of the day are discussed.

JUNE ATLANTIC.

For sale at all the News Stands and Book-stores.

Close of the thirty-third volume. The two serial novels—Moss Evans, Prudence Palfrey—are concluded in this number, each with striking effects. A Rebel's Recollections. By George Cary Eggleston, presents characteristic scenes in a lively manner. The Poetry of the number is by W. D. Howells, C. P. Cranch, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, Hiram Rich. G. P. Lathrop has a paper on Growth of the Novel. J. C. Lardner writes from personal experience of Morphine. A clever story by Jas. T. McKay is entitled Larcum's Little Chap. Henry James Jr. contributes a sketch of Siena. J. W. DeForest writes amusingly of Modern Cities. And the Editorial Departments of Recent Literature, Art, Music, and Education are well filled; the last named contains an interesting paper on the Education of Women in Science. Terms—35 cents a number; $4.00 a year. Hurd & Houghton, New York.

THE STORY OF BLIND MAN'S BUFF.

"Blind Man's Buff" is one of the sports that came over to England in the train of William the Conqueror. It had its origin in Liege—one of the fair provinces of France, in the prosperous days of Robert the Devout, who succeeded the famous old French monarch, Hugues Capet, in the year 996. In the year 990, Liege received, among her valiant chiefs, one Jean Colin. He was almost a giant in strength, a Samson among the Liegeois, and nearly shared the experience of Samson of old, as you shall presently hear. This giant warrior used to crush his opponents with a mallet. It was considered desirable to honor him with a title which should follow his name. What should it be? Not 'head-bitter,' of course; but the poetical designation, Maillart, or Jean Colin de la Maillat. Feuds were of perpetual occurrence in those dark old times, and Jean Colin's mallet was kept constantly busy in quelling them. Terrible became the name of Jean Colin Maillart.

"But Liege had another valiant chief, Count de Louvain, who when Maillart had proved himself superior to all of his other opponents, continued to bear arms against him. We cannot say whether or not Count de Louvain learned his war lessons from the conduct of the enemies of Samson, but, as he was ambitious to avoid the tap of Jean Colin's mallet upon his own
